Filtering the Data Horizontally (Choosing Columns)

Some columns we want and some we do not. The analysis requires us to do certain things. Below we will list each item of interest and the corresponding columns in the data:

-filter to tweets related to University of Chicago and 3 or 4 other universities: text, entities.hashtags.text
-information to identify the most prolific users: user.name, user.screen_name, retweeted, retweet_count
-where the authors are located: user.location, user.time_zone, place.country, place.full_name, place.name
-timelines of the tweet: created_at, timestamp_ms
-distinguishing UChicago tweeters vs. those of other universities: user.followers_count, language and others above

In [2]:

df = spark.read.json("hdfs:///user/ivy2/Tweets/tweets*.json").select(['text', 'user.name', 'user.sc reen_name', 'user.followers_count', 'retweeted_status.retweet_count',\ 'entities.hashtags.text', 'user.location', 'user.time_zone', 'place.country', 'place.full _name', 'place.name', \
          'created_at', 'timestamp_ms', 'lang'])
#df_hashtags = spark.read.json("hdfs:///user/ivy2/Tweets/tweets201706221*.json").select(['entities.hashtags.text' thColumnRenamed('text', 'hashtags')
#df1=spark.read.json("hdfs:///user/ivy2/Tweets/tweets201706221015.json")
#df2 = spark.read.json("hdfs:///user/ivy2/Tweets/tweets201706221*.json").select(['text', 'user.scr een_name', 'retweeted', 'retweet_count', 'retweeted_status.retweet_count',\
         #'user.location', 'created_at', 'timestamp_ms'])
#df3=spark.read.json("hdfs:///user/ivy2/Tweets/tweets201706221*.json")

You have some column names that are the same. Change them to avoid confusion.

In [6]:

Filtering the Data Vertically (Choosing Tweets/Rows)

We want to limit our data to tweets about University of Chicago and the Universities we want to compare them to.

In [9]:

dfRenamed = dfRenamed.where("lower(text) like '%university of chicago%' or lower(text) like '%notr e dame%' or lower(text) like '%marquette%' or lower(text) like '%indiana university%'")
dfRenamed.cache()

Out[9]:

DataFrame[text: string, name: string, screen_name: string, followers_count: bigint, retweet_count:
bigint, hashtags: array<string>, location: string, time_zone: string, country: string, full_name:
string, location_name: string, created_at: string, timestamp_ms: string, lang: string]

Put it to Pandas

In [10]:

```
schools=dfRenamed.toPandas()

How many rows do we have in the dataframe?

In [11]:
```
len(schools)
```

Out[11]:

350671

In [12]:
```
schools.head()

Top Users: What Else are the Tweeting About?

After downloading the data to your laptop and doing the analysis, you were able to identify the top users for each university by retweet. Collect the tweets for each of the top tweeters for each university.

In [12]:

top_tweeters=df.where("lower(screen_name) like '%chuckmodi1%' or lower(screen_name) like
